Welcome to the hub of DevOps innovation —Salt Lake City DevOpsDays—the premier gathering for DevOps practitioners and leaders in the heart of the Silicon Slopes. As we gear up for this year's event, envision an exclusive opportunity to engage with a dynamic community of 350 attendees, including developers, SREs, QA Engineers, PMOs, Directors, VPs, CTOs, and more.

Salt Lake City, synonymous with the Silicon Slopes, is home to a myriad of High Tech companies, boasting a landscape dotted with Fortune 500 giants, thriving startups, and everything in between. Seize the chance to forge meaningful connections with current and future customers, as well as our burgeoning technical workforce. Previous sponsors lauded the exceptional knowledge and openness of our attendees, citing immersive conversations that left a lasting impact. One sponsor enthused, "With most of the attendees, I had engaging conversations—they were open and interested in how my product could benefit them."

This year, our event takes center stage in Sandy, at the same location as last year's success. Nestled within the Salt Lake Valley at the Miller Conference Center on SLCC's LHM campus, Sandy is strategically positioned near the hub of high-tech companies. Your sponsor tables will occupy prime real estate in high-traffic areas, maximizing your opportunities for meaningful discussions and capturing the attention of our enthusiastic attendees.

While the call for speakers has closed, we are currently in the process of carefully selecting speakers and keynotes, ensuring that our program is a beacon of innovation and expertise. Stay tuned for updates on our stellar lineup. Our registration is wide open however, offering you a chance to align your brand with cutting-edge insights and innovation. Like the local treats during the break. Excellent communication leading up to the event."
